KELSEY'S ALTERNATING BEERIVE. Patented May 9, 1847. Entirely New Principles in the Management of Bees.

Simple, Us ful, Cheep and Durable.

"RESE Hives, the only ones of real value and utility to farmers and others engaged in the culture of Bees, now before the public, are constructed upon natural principles, and combine the following advantages: The Bees are easily hived in them—it never becomes necessary to kill off the swarms; honey can at all times be taken away when it can be spared by the swarms, or can be added for the sustenance of late ones; young swarms can be taken away at the proper periods and put into other hives where they go to work without the trouble of so arming or hiving, while the main swarms are never disturbed. The swarms are entirely protected from robbery by neighbo ing bees, and from mice and insects; they can be handled with perfect safety, and always living and breeding in new honey comb, are kept entirely healthy, and young swarms are always fully developed.

The eggs or embryo of the Bee Moth, or Miller, cannot hatch or mature around these Rives, and therefore the Bees are entirely protected. from the ravages of that destructive enemy, while the alternating principle is such that the Bees are kept industrious the whole season through, by always having plenty of room to work in. Old honey comb cannot accumulate, nor will the Bees "run out" or "die off" in these hives. They have been fully tested by actual use, under the direction of the inventor, and all the swarms and their increase, are now and will remain as good as new young swarms. Ample directions accompany each Hive, giving full instructions for the management of Bees, which are so simple that any person, with ordinary capacity and attention, cannot fail to be successful in their

They are sold very cheap, and all farmers or other persons, who keep bees, or wish to enter into that profitable culture, will find these flives all that can be desired, and are invited to call at the American Institute, and S. Mitchell's, 34 Bank street, N. Y. City; L. Freeman's, Notth Bergen, N. J.; Bedell's Temperance House, Syracose, N. Y.; A. Young's, Geneva, N. Y.; W. Sage's, Waterioo, N. Y.; R. Pordy's Brighton, Ohio; B. Truesdell, Elgin, Ill., and Col. Taylor's, Galveston, Texas, where they may be found and examined. Applications for exclusive rights to make and vend them in any part Todd The or Barrett of the Union, apply to WILLIAM R KELSEY, Patentee, Syracuse, N. Y., or to Albert Kelsey, his son and Agent, Palmer House, Indianapolis. 26.3w R S Sons of Temper

BEE HIVES -Mr. Albert Kelsey, who is stopping at the Galt House, commends to the public one of the best models of a bee hive that we have ever seen, various as those contrivances are. It affords positive and complete protection from the bee moth or miller, and is so arranged as to admit of a free circulation of air through it at all times. The honey can, at any time, be removed from the hive without disturbing the bees, or more can be added for the sustempore of the swarm if ac cessary, while the bees are kept healthy by lining in unit comb, all the time. This have embraces several other improvements, which we are not apiarian enough to detail, but which are readily appreciated on inspection. We refer to the advertisement in another column .- Cincin-

KEISEY'S ALTERNATING BEE HIVE.-Mr. Albert Kelney, son of the patentee, has been for several weeks in this city, for the purpose of introducing the valuable invention to apiatians. Judge Sinex, Thomas Collins, Esq., and several other gentlemen of this city and vicini-ty have purchased these hives, and pronounced them superior to any heretofore introduced here; and we have abundant evidence that this hive is all that it is represented to be by the patentee. We have been shown a hive in which a swarm has been at work about two weeks, and they have already nearly filled one box with honey. It is so arranged as to afford a complete protection from the bee moth or miller, and to admit a free circulation of air through it at all times. The honey can, at any time, be removed from the hive without disturbing the bees, or more can be added for the sustenance of the swarm if necessary, while the bees are kept healthy by living in new comb all the time. It is Mr. Kelsey's intention to visit Indianapolis in a few days, and from the satisfaction his hives have given here, we have no doubt If a fair trial be given, they will prove to be a source of profit and convenience to the bee culturists of central Indiana.—New Allmay Dem.
